

SUNDAY 8/27

JUMPING 101

VIRGINIA (GINNY) GILES

Ginny's equestrian career began in the suburbs of Chicago where she learned as a working student in Hunter/Jumpers.

Her horsemanship focus includes exercises to improve the balance, relationship and way of going for both horse and rider, along with classical dressage training methods.

Learning the basics of jumping is not about just jumping fences. It's about balance, straightness and quality equitation. This can be done over poles at walk, trot or canter, and if a rider is confident and comfortable enough, over a fence!

Ginny teaches all levels of English and Western riders with a focus on a positive learning experience for both horse and rider.
